

A COLD 77°F

Love happens.

It is not a thing that you seek and find. It comes to you, like magic.

Love grows.

As time goes by and you get to feel butterflies in your stomach and to see all those sparkling lights around your sight just thinking of the one.

Love prevails.

Even if your beloved one is, at least, 4,000 miles away and, probably, has never heard of you.

Love is lonely.

Most of the time, we have no one to talk about our feelings, just because they would not understand.

Love happened to us.

Because, no matter what, we feel butterflies in our stomach when our team hits the ice and we see all those sparkling lights around our sight just thinking of that dirty move in double overtime to win a playoff series.

Brazil is a South American country, the world's fifth-largest country by area, the sixth-most populous and averages 77°F.

Soccer is the most admired and practiced sport in Brazil and it has a huge impact on the way we root for our teams on any sport.

We used to be far from the NHL back in the early 90's, but, as the Internet came along, we found friends, and friends of friends, and became friends of each other and the hockey thing started to grow.

The online world turned all that distance into a few inches, and now we're into the action in FullHD resolution, crystal clear audio and tons of daily written words from tons of accessible sources.

With social networks, we got together to make something bigger, using our hearts and voices to make the world to know that #BrasilTemNHL (Brazil has NHL).

#BRASILTEMNHL

The best way to describe a Brazilian hockey fan is with the word crazy and, to think, we must be indeed.

We don't have snow here. Ice rinks are recreational and are set only by Christmas time. Our currency worth US$ 0,25 and we pay 6% on taxes for every purchase of apparel and merchs we make online on credit cards (and we buy a lot).

Also, we can name everyplayer on our teams' roster, some trivia and even mock some play-by-play.

We have fans of the Ducks, Yotes, Blues, Bruins, Flames, Canes, BHawks, Stars, Sens, Red Wings, Devils, Oilers, Panthers, Flyers, Wild, Preds, Rangers, Penguins, Sharks, Bolts, Leafs, Vegas, Caps, Canucks, Avs, Kings, Habs, Isles, Jets, Sabres... Maybe we don't have a Blue Jackets fan, but... Shrugs.
